8. Feature: The good, service, or construction has the following unique features, characteristics, or capabilities: The Natural Area Partnership Program was established in 1991 and provides matching funds ($2 State to $1 private) for the management of qualified private lands that have been permanently dedication to conservation (Hawaii Revised Statutes HRS § 195.6.5). Existing State administrative rules (HAR 13-210) outline the process for inclusion in this program. In short, a private landowner must submit a proposal to manage land that is of natural area reserve quality, prepare a long-term management plan for approval by the Board of Land and Natural Resources, and agree to transfer a conservation easement over the property to the State or an appropriate non-profit. The long-term management plan details the planned conservation actions, identifies who will be doing the conservation actions, and provides the cost associated with the actions. Once approved by the Board, the Department is to enter into a contract with the appropriate managing entity (identified in the plan). In addition, previous to this step, Division staff and the Natural Area Reserves Commission review a draft management plan and provide comments regarding the scope and adequacy of planned management based on their expertise, knowledge, or experience in managing or conducting research on similar lands. Finally, the long-range management plan must go through the environmental review process (see HRS Chapter 343 and HAR 13-210), which includes a public comment period before final submission to the Board. This step provides an extra measure of transparency and public accountability before committing State dollars for conservation of the proposed land.

9. Essential features. How the unique features, characteristics, or capabilities are essential for the agency to accomplish its work: DLNR/DOFAW has a mandate to protect the rare native species and native ecosystems found in Hawaii. These endemic species are often found on private land, or if found on both public and private land, may be better protected on the private land. Protection of species and ecosystems has to occur where they are naturally found. Often there is no other place in the state or world where these protection efforts can occur because they are one of a kind. Protection of these unique systems on private lands means the state does not have the extra expense of both buying the land and managing it, itself. The Nature Conservancy holds a conservation easement for managing the Waikamoi Preserve, which contains these unique natural features found nowhere else in the state.

11. Alternate source. The following other possible sources for the good, service, or construction were investigated but do not meet our needs because: Only the landowner or their managing partner has the legal right to manage their own land. Additionally, the program is continuously open to applications - any private landowner wishing to participate in the NAPP program may submit an application and begin the process at any time. The administrative rules (HAR 13-210) outline the criteria by which the Depart. (and Board) review the long-term management plan, so that all proposals go through the same process. In the past, the Department has sought (and received) sole-source approvals for the managing entity to implement the approved long-term management plan.
